HONGKONG, APRIL 2ND, 1875.

Whatever may have been thought regarding the practicability of the attempt to open up an overland route between Burmah and China, and the utility of it if opened, by failure of the Burmo-Chinese Exploring Expedition. This regret will be augmented by the tragical fate some of its members have met with at the hands of the Chinese at Momein. It appears the party was attacked near Momein on the upper route from Bhamo by a band of Chinese and hillmen, when Mr. MARGARY, the interpreter, was murdered, together with five Chinese servants, and their heads exposed, in true barbaric fashion, on the walls of Momein. Mr. Ney Elias, who was also attached to the expedition, but was, fortunately for himself, proceeding by another route, has been recalled, and hence the attempt has for the present been given up Colonel Brownz and his companions managed to make their retreat good to Teitkaw, a place within the Burmese Shan States, and from there will doubtless return to Rangoon. The party were provided with passports by the Chinese Government, and the motive for the attack is consequently not very clear. The attacking party were led by a nephew of LEESEE TABEE, the chief official of the town of Nangtin, by whom they had been received with marked courtesy and attention. - This band is said to have been the vanguard of an army of 3,000 men despatched by the Governor of Momein to annihilate the British officers.

The information received is at present, however, very imperfect, and it is difficult therefore, to assign an intelligible reason for the ferocious and evidently premeditated onslaught made upon the luckless explorers. It is possible, as the Times of India suggests, that the preparations made to send an expedition to punish the Nagas for the murder of Lieutenant Holcomer and some of his party not long since may have had something to do with the affair. But we shall have accurate information ere long, and it may possibly then be found that the people of Momein acted under a wrong impression. If, however, the savage act was committed in mere wanton cruelty and hostility, it ought not to go unpunished. These remote people should be taught that Great Britain has a long arm, powerful to avenge wrongs done to her children, no mate ter how difficult it may be to reach the made matters worse. For this he would punish wrongdoers. Mr. Mancany's untimely end is deeply to be deplored. He was talented and enterprising, and his thorough knowledge of the Chinese language was of most material assistance to his party. He adds one more drunk and becoming incipable. to the band of courageous and devoted men, who have freely perilled and lost their lives in the cause of geographical knowledge and the night-without pass or light and with at thing about the cash, the interests of commerce. This sad termina | tempting to bribe him with a dollar. tion to the Burmo Chinese Exploring Expedition will doubtless postpone indefinitely the custom here. They were simply on a visit attempt to establish a new trade route between Burmah and Chins. The glowing picture of magnificent results to accrue to Rangoon, drawn by its merchants, bas faded miserably, but though the task may not be adventured be carried out. But when accomplished it is somewhat doubtful whether the result fully equal the sanguine expectations.

A striking proof of the animosity borne by many Russians to England, and of the designs entertained secretly by them upon India is afforded in a letter written by a Mohammedan gentleman, named MUNSHI GRULAM HASSAN SABIB, to a native paper. published in Bombay. This gentleman, who at St. Petersburg, and it appears that in the asked the General what they mean to do whou they arrive in Afghanistan and whether they intend to enter India. General Kaufmann laughed and said, "If hostilities break out; we shall certainly not be slow to enter India." He then asked whether the people of India hated the English Government, and was probably disappointed at being told that it would be strange if they did considering "the perfect liberty they enjoy under the British rule," that the people were not far enough advanced in civilisation to be capable of self-government, and that they (the Mohammedans) would not like to be governed by the Hindus. But the gallaut general failed not to attempt to sow the bitter seed of disaffection. Said be: "Indians can neither in military nor in civil employments riso beyond a certain degree; do they ascribe this circumstance to the justice of the British Government or to the absence of it? But the sneer failed in its intent. The British | hard labour. This answer apparently roused the ire of the Muscovite, for he exclaimed: " No by God! I know the English do not derstand how to govern humanely any except their own, people. Many Russian travellers have been in India, and have informed us about the affairs of India; and we know that the English Government is very tyrannical." Several reflections arise from the perusal of this conversation. General KAUFMANNIS a representative Russian. If it is true that he said what is stated, it deserves serious attention. It has been repeatedly asseverated that Russian bangle and was twice flogged. He then gave emissaries are constantly engaged in India bis age as 21 years, whereas the Magistrate set in audeavouring to foment disloyally among HALL& HOLTZ and KELLE the natives, and stir them to revolt. It is hard labour, and ordered him to be flogged not impossible these fellows are the Russian "travellers "_ who inform their countrymen that the English rule in India is tyrannical. It is a base and impudent slander, which we can well afford to hurl back in the face of the libeller, to say the English do not understand how to "govern humanely." How is it that, with her tiny garrisons, Britain can manage to preserve wanted them also. He then said he wanted order throughout her vast dominions, with half a dozen shirts. The nhabitants of India have not always been treated as they should, but the present Administration is a wise, a humane, and an enlightened one: What European Government would have proved equal to the recent call the prisoner. Chun Ahoi, master of the Ching upon its capacity and resources during the terrible famine in Orissa? Never, under similar circumstances, have so few lives been lost, and so much dire misery averted in an Asiatic country as on that memorable occasion. Was this the action of an inhumane Government? > WHO DR. KENEALY IS. A voice at which three judges trombled like aspen leaves, and that silenced in a septence five opposing counsel, will be heard in tones making the Gothic hall resound with the fearless advocacy of truth, justice, and liberty comparable to that of Chatham, when the torrent of eleguence rolled from his lips as a mighty river, diffusing life, and health, and joy around to his glorious and dear country. Not one out of a bundred English constituencies has the splendid opportunity, once in a century, of returning so great and good a men as their representative, as the people of Stoke-upon-Treat now baye. Who is Mr. Davenport? Echo answers, "Who ?" Who is Mr. Walton ? All the long-eared tribe can tell, and they alone. But who is Dr. Kenealy ? And all the world simultaneously replies, "Among scholars he stands in the foremost rank; among gentlemen, in all that constitutes true nobility, second to none : profound in attainments of the law. and knowledge of the Constitution and principles of Government of this great kingdom: brave as a lion, but with a heart full of generosity and tender impulses for the poor and the

> WHAT DR. HENEALY IS GOING TO DO IN PARLIAMENT.

He will go to Parliament, not to be the flunkey of either the apostate Jew, or the renegade Protestant, but to represent England and English welfare; and, above all, the working classes, who want a man, and have him here at hand, with the fire and force of Milton, and the intrepidity of Oromwell, to meet and fight despotism. Dr. Kenealy goes to the House of Commons with the express determination to destroy the Whig and Tory conspiracy against. the people; to found, with the assistance of the Magna Charta Association, a great, powerful, honest, and determined English party, of fifty or a bundred people's representatives and with these under his banner and leadership, to sweep away for ever the two family factions who have possessed themselves of England so long, and so loaded her with debt, that even to ive becomes a matter of the Bardest difficulty. And let no man despair that Dr. Kenealy can do this. This man showed himself in the Court at Westminster to be an avalanche, Parho bore all before him; and we believe that, within ten years, he and his Magna Charta will role Engand, for the people, and the people only. Oh what a oplendid consummation this will be. Let the working classes bear in their thoughts, that there are, in this man's mind, a bundred measures teeming for their benefit; that the force of thousands in the house of corruption cannot put him down; that as he termed the three judges, and kept them down like three oats, that hardly dared to mew in his presence, so he will master these right bonourable humbugs who delude the people, and pass the wicked laws under which they groan. CLOVE CULTIVATION IN ZANZIBAL A special kind of cloves-namely, those from Zanzibar are an important commodity in the London market. The cloves-which are the fruit, or rather cup or envelope, of the unopened flowers-grow on trees from 15 it. to 40 ft, high, and it is not considered likely that there will be another crop of this useful spice for the next four years. N THE DAYS WHEN EARTH WAS YOUNG "In the days when Earth was young Love and Laughter roamed together; Love took up als harp and sung. Round him all was golden weather! But there came a sigh anon-What will be when Life is gone?

Laughter then would try his skill. Saug of mirth and joy undying: But he played his part so ill, He set Echo all a-sighing: Ever came an undertone-What will be wheat Life is done?

Then for ever since that time. Love no more can live with Laughter: For bright as is the Summer-prime. Whater pale will follow after,-Love henceforth must dwell with Sighs: Joy was left in Paradice."

From A. G. BUTLER. URIENT AND OCCIDENT. I remember well our meeting, When you dawned upon my sight, Grace and beauty o'er me fleeting, First my soul awaked to light. When in exile's desolation: . Slowly dragged the hours for me, Naught was there of inspiration, Of hope, and love, and deity. As the days were being rounded, ... Mid toil, and duty, and with care, To memory's car the 10ft voice sounded : In drenme I saw thy features fair.

Once again my heart is beating, Again thou dawn'dst upon my sight, Grace and beauty o'er me fleeting, Awakes my soul to pure delight.

Ever be my consolation. Life's revived once more to me Ever be my inspiration, My hopo, my love, my deity.
